

Graduate students and faculty are cordially invited to attend UNC-CH's annual

Languages Across the Curriculum (LAC) Information Session

Thursday, February 7th, 2008

2:00 - 3:00pm

Global Education Center Room 3009

Attendance is free and includes complimentary refreshments!

This session provides a pedagogical introduction to UNC-CH's LAC Program, which integrates the use of foreign languages into interdisciplinary courses within the College of Arts and Sciences. LAC administrators and instructors will discuss the following:

The Theory and Practice of LAC: a brief background of the objectives, models, and methods of Languages Across the Curriculum programs at UNC-CH and other institutions nationwide.

Tips and Techniques for LAC Instructors: an overview of the responsibilities of UNC-CH LAC TAs, as well as practical advice on selecting teaching materials and leading discussions.

Applying for a LAC TA Position: detailed instructions for graduate students wishing to apply for LAC TAships, and a summary of application and hiring procedures.

UNC's new Graduate Certificate in LAC Instruction: information on the requirements and goals of the certificate for graduate students wishing to document their ability to teach in an interdisciplinary multilingual context.

 Participation in this workshop is strongly recommended for graduate students who wish to apply for upcoming LAC TA positions. *****

Faculty and graduate students from languages/literatures, social sciences, and humanities departments are especially encouraged to attend.

Registration is required to attend this LAC Workshop!
