APRIL 6th-8th, 2006

Organizers:

- J. Laurence Hare, Jr., cand. phil. (University of North Carolina)
- Johanna Jacobsen, cand. phil. (University of Pennsylvania)

April 6th, 2006 6:30 PM - Toy Lounge, Dey Hall
Opening Address by MARTIN JAY (UC Berkeley)
"Can There Be National Philosophies in a Transnational World?"

April 7th-8th, 2006 - Institute for Arts and Humanities, Hyde Hall
Panel Sessions

This colloquium will bring together scholars and graduate students from both sides of the Atlantic to discuss the relationship between nationalism and transnationalism in the development of the humanities and social sciences in Europe. The presenters will place new transnational approaches in historical perspective and will consider how transnational experiences, ideas, and contacts have influenced the production of "national" knowledge. The participants will cover a wide range of fields, including: anthropology, archaeology, ethnology, folklore, history, literature, philology, and philosophy.

THE PUBLIC IS WARMLY INVITED TO ATTEND AND JOIN THE DISCUSSION
