Intensive Dutch Language Summer Study Fellowships

Summer Dutch Institute Language Fellowships

The Indiana University European Union Center of Excellence is offering €2000 graduate fellowships for summer study of Dutch at the 2007 Indiana University Summer Dutch Institute.

The intensive summer workshop is equivalent to one year of regular academic language study during a six-week summer session: May 21 - June 29. Language instruction is four hours daily plus four hours of additional mandatory language activities each week.

Graduate students with an interest in issues of applied EU and transatlantic public policy and those desiring language training before embarking on field research or a professional internship in the EU are eligible to apply. In their fellowship application, applicants should indicate their interest in EU policy studies and relevance of language study.

Graduate students from fields such as history; modern languages, literatures and linguistic policy; the humanities; popular culture; and other disciplines may apply a broad definition of "policy studies" and "policy relevance." However, applicants should explain convincingly why and how their interests are relevant at some level, even indirectly, to the formation of EU policy as a whole and how their interests may affect policy debates and research.

Both U.S. citizens and non-U.S. citizens (regardless of resident status) currently enrolled in a graduate program at a U.S. college or university are eligible to apply for these fellowships.

APPLICATION PROCEDURES: To apply, please visit the EU Center web site: <http://www.indiana.edu/~eucenter/langfellows.shtml>. Applications are due March 23, 2007.
