Milton said his unique teaching style has allowed him the opportunity to shape and influence his students' lives both academically and socially. As a member of Southwestern Middle School's faculty he was actively involved in several organizations and school affiliations. This involvement expanded his career development and led him to become a well respected educator, in his school and school system. Most recently Milton served as an Instructional Consultant with the School of Education and Psychology at ECSU. In this role he advised community college students seeking to transfer to a four-year institution and resolved curriculum issues between ECSU, and community colleges.

Milton graduated with a master's degree in Educational Administration from East Carolina University. He said this was the next logical step in assisting the accomplishment of his future professional goals. His belief in individuals being life long learners will ultimately allow him to continue his education and one day allow him to achieve his doctorate degree. Milton stated, "As a former educator and Instructional Consultant", I offer the knowledge of the procedures of teaching and academic success. I also possess the leadership and management skills that are necessary to work cooperatively with students, staff, and community served by Elizabeth City State University."
