

Speakers By Name - Leigh F. Callahan, Ph.D.

Leigh F. Callahan, Ph.D.

Leigh Callahan is an associate professor in the Departments of Medicine, Orthopaedics and Social Medicine and adjunct associate professor of epidemiology in the Department of Epidemiology. She is also a research fellow in the Sheps Center for Health Services Research.

Dr. Callahan has published more than one hundred scientific articles, reviews, editorials, and book chapters. She has been conducting research in the rheumatic diseases for more than fifteen years, and is past editor of the journal Arthritis Care and Research.

Speech Topics:

- Social Determinants and Health Outcomes
- Arthritis and Its Impact on Quality of Life
- Arthritis As a Women's Health Issue
- The Prevention of Disability Associated with Arthritis
- Complementary and Alternative Therapies in Arthritis
- Arthritis as a Public Health Issue