Introducing Sharon Hill International

Biography
Sharon A. Hill spent more than 20 years as a development and marketing manager at Fortune 500 giant IBM. While handling her global management position, she was elected Chairman of the Raleigh/RTP Black Diversity Network Group, a position she held for five years at IBM's largest site. As a Toastmasters International award winner, Sharon displays mastery and confidence for audiences from 20 to over 500.

Combining her passion for business etiquette, diversity in the workplace and her MBA research on Organizational Behavior, Sharon is recognized as an authority on American business etiquette for companies, groups, associations and individuals. Sharon teaches and motivates diverse audiences as both an educator and as an entertainer. Her high-energy and interactive seminars show individuals how to get a job, keep a job, and be promoted on their job based on interpersonal skills. Her seminars help companies and organizations improve workplace fairness and civility, which also improves morale, employee loyalty and productivity.

Sharon also finds time as an author, workshop leader, corporate trainer and keynote speaker. Her latest book is titled Wild Woman’s Guide to Etiquette: Saving the World One Handshake at a Time. It is an essential read for anyone who desires to display poise and confidence during social and business situations.

As president of Sharon Hill International, Sharon teaches seminars on American Business Etiquette, Effective Speaking Techniques, Preparing Executive Resumes, Preparing Diverse Students for Corporate America and much more.

Sharon A. Hill has recently been named the #1 Etiquette Trainer in America by Phyllis Davis, Founder and Director of the American Business Etiquette Trainers Association.

Sharon Hill Presents:
The Power of Etiquette
in American Business

Technology has changed personal and professional interactions in today’s fast-paced workplace. Perpetuating impersonalized communication, technology can distance people and disable the very foundation of trusted, long-term relationships.

An extension of a frenzied environment and elevated stress levels can reduce productivity and even damage relationships. The art of creating a positive first impression and developing trusted, long-term relationships has become lost. Business today recognizes that education and talent are no longer enough for a company, or for an individual, to succeed. Rapport is also vital to compete in today’s competitive marketplace.

Sharon Hill teaches, writes, speaks and coaches individuals and companies the skills necessary for their employees to become grounded in all their human interactions while leveraging the advantages of technology. She offers learning combined with a keen sense of humor to enhance and complement each experience.

Sharon Hill, Certified Etiquette Trainer (CET), uses the breakthrough formulas created by the American Business Etiquette Trainers Association (ABETA) to teach employees about corporate loyalty and how to retain customers. Through her time-tested experience, Sharon Hill offers her vital hints and tips to help companies succeed in business today. Her energy, enthusiasm and humor delight her diverse audiences as they experience her rapid-learning formulas for success.
