

AVAILABLE RESOURCES

WEB RESOURCES

Faculty Expertise Database

This database enhances and streamlines access to information on the international expertise of faculty at the UNC Chapel Hill. It is free of charge and available to faculty, students, and the general public. For more information, go to www.unc.edu/fie.

Global Initiatives Listserv

Stay informed via email about opportunities through brief bi-weekly e-bulletins. Join the listserv at: cgi.unc.edu/aboutus/stay-informed.html.

Global Music

In collaboration with WXYC 89.3 FM, UNC's student-run radio station, the Area Studies Centers have launched a new monthly radio program. The program focuses on a particular world region each month, integrating both music from this part of the world and relevant expertise of guests scholars from UNC Chapel Hill.

Global e-articles

Published on a quarterly basis, Global-e provides a forum for commentary on global events, processes, and issues. Each edition features brief essays by leading scholars and practitioners, offering provocative reflections on a range of topics with the aim of stimulating discussion among the global studies community. The journal is available at: www.global-ejournal.org.

Evaluation Toolkit

Classroom presentations engage educators and students in learning about other countries, cultures, and international current events, but the evaluation of these presentations has not received adequate attention. The Evaluation Tool Kit and an accompanying manual can be used to determine the extent to which these K-12 International Outreach Programs achieve their desired outcomes and meet the expectations of teachers, students, presenters, and program administrators. cgi.unc.edu/research/k-12-toolkit

RELEVANT PUBLICATIONS

Educator Handbook on Mexico

This free manual describes the Mexican educational system, the geography and history of Mexico, and cultural differences between Mexico and the United States to better prepare educators for the children from Mexico in their classrooms. To order, visit cgi.unc.edu/handbook.

NC Immigration Book

Going to Carolina del Norte presents the stories of Mexican immigrants living in Orange County, NC and their families who remain in Celaya, Guanajuato.

LightBox

Carolina for Kibera publishes this book of photographs and narratives from the young women in the Binti Pamoja Center. All book purchases go towards CFK's girls' scholarship fund. Visit www.bintipamoja.org to purchase.

The American South in a Global World

Looking beyond broad theories of globalization, this volume examines the specific effects of globalizing forces on the southern United States.

Migration and Citizenship

International Migration and Citizenship Today is carefully constructed to spark discussion and student reflection on issues surrounding migration and features suggested teacher resources at the end of each section.

MORE RESOURCES

Consortium for Teaching about Asia

The Center for Global Initiatives hosts the NC Consortium for Teaching about Asia in order to work with school districts to enhance instruction on Asia in the curriculum.

Global American South Conference

The Center for Global Initiatives holds annual conferences to examine different issues pertaining to the globalization of the American South. Usually held in Spring, visit cgi.unc.edu for more information.