Globalization: An Introduction for K-12 Teachers and Administrators

This course immerses educators from all disciplines and roles in an exploration of the rapid global changes in government, economics, environment and health, culture, and technology impacting their schools and communities, our country, and the planet.

An online version of World View’s week-long on campus “Global Education Leaders’ Program,” this six-week course requires participants to read, discuss, and reflect on the most important issues facing America and the world today. The course will introduce educators to university and other resources for continued personal and professional learning of global issues. As a final project, each participant will present an action plan for their classroom or school to support the development of globally competitive graduates. Four CEU credits are offered for successful completion of the course.

The course is offered online to North Carolina educators through LEARN NC. If you are interested in registering for a course, fill out the form below. Please register early because space is limited to 20.

Cost (North Carolina Educators): The registration fee is $275, but for World View Partners it is $225. To find out if your school or college is a World View Partner, visit www.unc.edu/world/partners.shtml.
