

What Educators are saying....

“Now these children can see that there’s a big world out there
...and that they’re connected to it.”

“My class thinks of her as a friend.”

-First Grade Teacher
Charlotte, NC

“The students have really enjoyed getting to know our WebFriend. We have located it (his country) on a map and the students eagerly ask him for particular information. The process has also motivated the students to write. They can't wait to read and respond to his letters. As we discussed how location and climate affects the way we live in social studies, they were able to get real life examples of this concept from our letters. The WebFriends program has been and will continue to be an important component of our studies across the curriculum.”
