THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Endowed Professorship:
Dow Professorship of Sustainable Science, Technology and Commerce

The University of Michigan Business School and the School of Natural Resources & Environment invite applications for an endowed joint position made possible by a generous gift from the Dow Chemical Company.

JOB QUALIFICATIONS:

We are seeking a senior scholar appropriate for appointment at the full professor level with an outstanding record of scholarship who can integrate business policy, economics and management with environmental science and policy. A PhD or equivalent degree is required along with demonstrated achievements in both research and teaching. The disciplinary focus is open. Examples of disciplines include, but are not restricted to, environmental economics, industrial ecology, environmental law, renewable energy or other sustainable systems, operations research, and environmental strategy. Experience in the private, non-governmental, or governmental sectors is valued.

The position entails a combination of teaching, research and program leadership. The holder of the Dow Professorship is expected to pursue cutting edge research at the intersection of business and the environment. In addition, the holder is expected to teach and mentor students in the Corporate Environmental Management Program (CEMP), a three-year joint MBA-MS degree program.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE:

The Dow Chair Search Committee will begin reviewing applications on Jan. 15, 2004, but applications will continue to be considered until the position is filled. Applicants are invited to submit a letter of introduction and a full curriculum vita to:

CONTACT: Dow Professorship Search Committee

DIW BERLIN

Department of International Economics

Position Available

The Department of International Economics at the DIW Berlin is hiring a:

Senior Research Fellow,
Post-Doc,
PhD Student,
or Visiting Fellow.

We are seeking an economist with an interest in one of the following fields:

International Trade,
International Finance,
European Integration,
Development Economics.

JOB QUALIFICATIONS:

You are either an economist with a PhD in economics, several years of research experience and peer-reviewed publications or a young economist with a good masters degree and a commitment to pursuing a PhD in economics. In either case, you enjoy economic policy analysis, advising policy makers and dealing with media representatives. You may also have experience with designing, acquiring and implementing independent research projects and you work well in teams. Ideally, you have completed some studies or research abroad and have a good working knowledge in English.

We provide an attractive academic environment for pursuing independent research and for advising key policy makers. You benefit from our international reputation and our location in Berlin. We also support you in your academic career by providing training opportunities in Germany and abroad.

We offer a competitive salary based on the German public pay scale BAT. The starting date for the positions is flexible and you may choose to work part-time. The appointment is initially limited to three years.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE:

We are committed to increasing the share of female economists working at the DIW Berlin and therefore encourage women to apply for this position. Disabled applicants will be given preference over otherwise similarly qualified candidates.

Please send your application by 31 January 2004 to:

GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY

Andrew Young School of Policy Studies

Bernard B. and Eugenia A. Ramsey Chair

The Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University invites nominations and applications for a distinguished senior scholar engaged in nonprofit research to fill the Bernard B. and Eugenia A. Ramsey Chair of Private Enterprise. The Candidates must have an exceptional record of published research and an established national reputation.
JOB QUALIFICATIONS:

We are particularly interested in applicants whose research and expertise fits one or more of the following broad areas of nonprofit studies: nonprofit management; economic performance of the nonprofit sector; the relationship between non-profits and government and business; public policy towards nonprofits. The candidate’s degree could be in one of several fields, including (but not limited to) business, economics, law, policy, political science, or public administration.

The recipient of the Ramsey Chair will be appointed either in the Department of Economics or the Department of Public Administration and Urban Studies within the Andrew Young School. The chair holder will also join the School's Nonprofit Studies Program, which has a faculty already engaged in extensive research, policy development, and outreach to the non-profit sector. The candidate is expected to take a leadership role in developing the existing nonprofit program into a nationally recognized one.

In addition to very competitive salary and benefits, the chair holder will have a stipend that can be used to support research or outreach activities. For more information visit the School's website at:

http://www.gsu.edu/~wwsps and the Nonprofit Studies Program's website at:
