

Japanese: Language in context

TV clip: "Duomo" evening variety show, KBC-TV (Fukuoka)

Things to look for:

- a. Pronouns and address forms (double underline) — Which are used? In what circumstances?
 b. Verbs of giving/receiving (dashed underline) used as auxiliaries — Which ones? Why?
 c. Who uses honorific language (wavy underline)? In what situations?
 d. The 'particle' -wa (dotted underline) — Are there cases of contrastive topic? Non-contrastive?
 e. Are performative polite forms used? In what situations?
- f. This clip also contains examples of Fukuoka dialect morphosyntax (bolded); in what situations?
 g. Use of discourse particles; frequent ones are ▶ yo: mild emphasis, often new information
 ▶ ne: generally used to seek agreement or confirmation from listener
 h. Use of the construction n(o) + copula (na n da, na n desu, na no desu); this is hard to pin down but often signals that an explanation for something is being given. 'It's that'
