Each June, 50 educational leaders from across the state come to UNC-Chapel Hill for an intensive study of global issues that impact students and communities. The objective is to help educators in leadership positions to plan and implement programs that will increase global understanding by faculty and students.

Topics and presentations include:

Globalization
- Cultural Dimensions of Globalization
- An Economic Perspective
- Communications Revolution

Geopolitics in an Age of Terrorism
- The Challenges and Responsibilities of a Single Superpower
- International Terrorism: Background and Future

United States’ Place in the World
- Education: A Cross-Cultural Perspective
- Dynamics of U.S. Relationships with Africa, Asia, the European Union, Israel & Palestine, and Latin America.

Population Dynamics, Immigration, and the Environment
- Critical Global Environmental Issues
- Population Dynamics and Public Health Issues
- Immigration and Demographic Changes in the South

Developing an Action Plan for your School or College
- Sessions with Faculty to Help Develop an Action Plan
- Global Education Resource Panel
- Group Discussions to Share Ideas

Primarily funded by UNC, most program costs are covered. Participants are asked to pay a registration fee of $550*.

For more information please contact:
Robert Phay, Director
World View
919/843-9408 or phay@unc.edu

* The registration fee includes a five-night double occupancy stay at a local hotel. A single room requires a $200 supplement.